Note:

It is unclear to date whether the stamp “E.D” is the true Delacroix mark [Lugt 838a] or the false mark used by the artist’s assistant Pierre Andrieu [Lugt 838]. If verified as the former, this would indicate that the watercolour was included in the sale of Delacroix’ estate in 1864. In that sale, drawings were listed by subject matter, sometimes in lots comprising numerous items, with descriptive titles but without measurements or illustrations. It has not so far been possible to identify this particular drawing in the sale catalogue.

The personal papers found in Cornelius Gurlitt’s Salzburg home include a collection of about 2,400 photographs of artworks. Photograph no. 7.1_F705 is a reproduction of this work; inscribed on verso, a handwritten statement of authenticity by the art expert André Schoeller of Paris, 13, Rue de Téhéran, dated 26 May 1942. This document shows that the work was on the market in the 1940s in occupied France; there is a high probability that Gurlitt acquired the work during that period.
