Note:

This object was found in a package with two other works (a small figurine of Venus and an Amulet; Lost Art ID nos. 521799 and 521814 respectively). Said package postmarked May 1947, and addressed to Dr. Hildebrand Gurlitt in Aschbach by one Fritz Hensel, Karl Marx Strasse 5, Freiberg in Saxony. It is possible that an old package was re-used to store these items, in which case Hensel might be entirely unrelated to its contents.

The personal papers found in Cornelius Gurlitt's Salzburg home include a collection of about 2,400 photographs of artworks. Photograph no. 17.1_F17136 shows two displays of a total of fourteen objects, including this work as mounted on a pedestal. Photograph inscribed on verso: "39".

This object has sustained extensive fire damage, as have many of the ancient artefacts in the Schwabing Art Trove. Time and circumstances of this damage are currently unknown (cf. Lost Art ID nos. 521787–521797, 521799, 521805, 521806, 521809, 521814, 521815).

Disclaimer:

The research of the Taskforce Schwabing Art Trove focused exclusively on the provenance of the artwork described in this report. This report does not purport to make pronouncements on any legal claims and legal positions.
